IT IS ALL OVER.

Great Boston Strike Broken
Thursday Night.

Settlement Effected And Traffic
Resumes Today.

All The Old Men Will Eventually Get Their Jobs Back.

Boston, March 13.—Through the united efforts of representatives of the great mercantile bodies of Boston, ably seconded by the chief executives of city and state, in conference with the recognized leaders of organized labor, the great strike of freight handlers and kindred trades that has held the city in its grasp for the past four days was broken tonight and the men, fully 20,000 of them, will resume their respective occupations tomorrow morning. This result was attained at a conference held this afternoon at the office of Governor Crane. The decision was at once reported to the allied freight and transportation companies and at a special meeting tonight was unanimously endorsed. All the old men for whom places can be made will be taken back tomorrow, but owing to the suddenness of the settlement and the large number of new men who have been taken on it is likely that many of the old employees will find no vacancies open for them. Eventually, it is believed, all of them will regain their old places. Transfers and longshoremen will find an unprecedented demand for their services and traffic of all descriptions, which has been virtually at a standstill for three or four days, will be resumed tomorrow with a rush. The Barge Transportation company, the loading and unloading of whose teams precipitated the trouble with the New York, New Haven and Hartford freight handlers, does not seem to have figured at all in the settlement of this controversy and the sentiment of the men against that company is just as bitter as ever. Under the new arrangement, union men are not required to load or unload the barge teams.

"Plenty of Men."

Boston, March 13.—"Very few men have returned to work this morning," said President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston and Maine railroad. "The men left of their own accord, which, of course, is understood. We had no trouble with them, and recognize union or non-union men alike. All who apply for work are regarded alike, and, once employed, we mean they are to stay as long as they do their work. The men left in sympathy with the others, that was all. We have plenty of men now to handle the work of the road, and do not anticipate the slightest trouble in getting more should we require them. In fact, we have had numberless applications from men who want work and so have nothing to fear. Our responsibility begins when the freight is left on our premises. As there are but few teams upon the streets, there has been less freight offered. We are running with about half our usual force, and that is sufficient to handle the volume of business. My position with regard to the men who went out was just this: I felt that as they left with no grievance that if they were not given an opportunity to return there might be trouble. So I set Thursday morning as the time for the men who wanted to remain in the employ of the Boston and Maine road to appear for work. This gave those who desired to return the chance. All those who have not come back are no longer in the employ of the road. What action the road will take in the future with regard to engaging them will have to be decided when the occasion presents itself."

LAMP EXPLODES.

Fatally Burns Miss Kate Higgins of Salem, Mass.

Waltham, Mass., March 13.—Miss Kate Higgins, a domestic in the employ of W. D. Reynolds, was terribly burned today and will probably not recover. She was on her way to her chamber with a lighted lamp when it exploded, setting fire to her clothing.

WILLIAM HAGGERTY.

Kingston, Mass., March 13.—William Haggerty, who worked for forty-seven years without a day's illness for the Plymouth Cordage company, died today in his seventy-eighth year. He lived three miles from his work, and recently boasted of traveling 85,000 miles on foot to earn his living. He came here from Ireland in 1851, and voted the democratic ticket "from Douglass to Bryan."

TO PRESIDENTIAL CLASS.

Washington, March 13.—The following fourth class postoffice will be advanced to the presidential class, April 1: New Hampshire, Enfield.

NAVAL MARKSMANSHIP.

General Order Designed To Improve It.

Secretary Long has issued a general order designed to improve the marksmanship of the men of the navy. It provides, in part, as follows:

"The Firing Regulations for Small Arms, 1898, for the United States Army are hereby adopted for the navy and marine corps as a book of reference and text book for officers and men, so far as it applies to the needs of each arm of the naval service."

"The impracticability, at present, of having target ranges of 800 or 1,000 yards, and the small amount of time possible to devote to small-arm firing, make it necessary to modify the army regulations for sharpshooters and marksmen of different classes. It is, however, essential that the high standard of requirements laid down by the army regulations be considered as the ideal to which the navy and marine corps should endeavor to conform."

"It is not considered necessary for enlisted men of the navy to qualify in all the requirements of skirmishing and volley firing, but the entire scheme of firing laid down in the army regulations as modified by instructions relative to Small-Arm Firing in the United States Marine Corps, 1900, shall be carried out by the marine corps."

"Until such time as a modification of the army scheme of firing shall be decided upon for the navy, the regulations for small-arm target practice now in force (Gun and Torpedo Drills for the United States Navy) shall be followed. Articles 21 to 151, inclusive, of the Army Firing Regulations for Small Arms, 1898, defining sighting drill and gallery practice, shall be at once adopted in the navy and carried out as far as practicable."

"Commanding officers of all receiving, cruising and training ships will make requisition for ten thousand rounds of gallery practice ammunition, caliber .30, and one gallery practice target, and, in addition, if not provided with the American magazine rifle will make requisition for six of them for gallery use. The brass cartridge cases, after firing, will be collected and turned into store for reloading."

In order to carry out the provisions of this general order, the bureau of navigation is having constructed at the navy yard, New York, a number of small iron targets for issue to ships and is also building or about to build at various navy yards and training stations along the coast galleries for target practice, with reduced ammunition, to fire with the service rifle. The navy has adopted the same rifle as the army, caliber .30, and general order No. 82 is the first step in securing absolute uniformity in methods of target practice and infantry tactics in the army, navy and marine corps. This order is the result of a recommendation of a board consisting of Major C. H. Lanchester of the marine corps, who is inspector of target practice for the marine corps, and Lieutenant A. P. Niblack, who is inspector of target practice for the navy.

TALMAGE VERY ILL.

San Antonio, Texas, March 13.—T. DeWitt Talmage, confined to his berth on account of illness, has passed through this city on his way to Washington. He was accompanied by Mrs. Talmage and his physician, Mr. Talmage is returning from Mexico, where he went several weeks ago.

Upon his arrival in the Mexican capital he contracted a cold and later influenza developed. While in the city of Mexico he was under the care of Dr. Fields, of the American hospital.

Mr. Talmage will stop one day at New Orleans for rest. Mrs. Talmage expresses no fears over his condition.

ANDREW CARNEGIE AT THE NEW YORK LIBRARY CLUB.

New York, March 13.—Andrew Carnegie was the chief guest and principal speaker this evening at the seventh annual dinner of the New York Library club. Among the other guests were three hundred librarians of New York city and vicinity. In the course of his speech Mr. Carnegie said that he had passed upon about forty applications for libraries during the day and he was glad to say that he saw his way to granting all, with the possible exception of two, of them.

HEARING WILL BE HELD NEXT SATURDAY.

Salem, Mass., March 13.—The hearing on the motion of the counsel for John C. Best, who was convicted of the murder of George C. Bailey, to set aside the verdict, will be made in the supreme court in Salem next Saturday morning. Judge Fox, who presided at the trial, will hear the motion.

MRS. SOFFEL INDICTED.

Pittsburg, March 13.—Indictments in three cases against Mrs. Catherine Soffel, wife of former Warden Peter Soffel, growing out of the escape from jail of the Biddle brothers in January, were considered today. Two bills were returned against her. Should Mrs. Soffel be convicted of all the counts, the maximum sentence that could be inflicted upon her is sixteen years' imprisonment and a fine of $2,500.

INTENSE SUFFERING

From Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble

Instantly Relieved and Permanently Cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A New Discovery, But Not a Patent Medicine.

Dr. Redwell relates an interesting account of what he considers a remarkable case of acute stomach trouble and chronic dyspepsia by the use of the new discovery, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

He says: "The patient was a man who had suffered, to my knowledge, for years with dyspepsia. Everything he ate seemed to sour and create gases in the stomach. He had pains like rheumatism in the back, shoulder blades and limbs, fullness and distress after eating, poor appetite and loss of flesh; the heart became affected, causing palpitation and sleeplessness at night.

"I gave him powerful nerve tonics and blood remedies, but to no purpose. As an experiment I finally bought a 50 cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at a drug store and gave them to him. Almost immediate relief was given, and after he had used four boxes he was to all appearances fully cured."

"There was no more acidity or sour, watery risings, no bloating after meals, the appetite was vigorous, and he had gained between 10 and 12 pounds in weight of solid, healthy flesh."

"Although Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are advertised and sold in drug stores, yet I consider them a most valuable addition to any physician's line of remedies, as they are perfectly harmless and can be given to children or invalids or in any condition of the stomach with perfect safety, being harmless and containing nothing but fruit and vegetable essences, pure pepsin and Golden Seal."

"Without any question they are the safest, most effective cure for indigestion, biliousness, constipation and all derangements of the stomach, however slight or severe."

KITTERY.

The upper tenement of the new double house recently built on Cattle's Hill for Dr. A. W. Johnson, is to be occupied by Mr. Milliken and family who have occupied the Cox house for the past two years.

George Coleman, who has had an interest in the meat market at Kittery Point, has disposed of the same and has entered the employ of E. Gately & Co., of Boston as salesman.

There will be the regular prayer meetings at the several churches this evening. The improvement in the condition of the sidewalks and crosswalks will no doubt contribute to a larger attendance than has been the rule recently.

Miss Jessie Irene Wentworth and her mother, Mrs. John Wentworth, who have been so critically ill, are now considered out of danger, much to the delight of their neighbors and friends in other localities. Their experience has been a severe and tedious one.

There will be an assembly by the Linnon club at Wentworth hall this evening. These strictly invitation gatherings of the past winter have been very successful and have contributed very much to the enjoyment of the young people.

Kittery's town meeting will be held on Monday, March 21, and the caucus will soon be held.

Rev. Dr. George W. Gile of Portsmouth lectured at the Second Christian church on Thursday evening, his subject being "Yellowstone National Park." It was the third and last of the course that has proved very interesting.

The local meat and provision dealers claim that the strike has interfered considerably with their orders. One merchant who had in an order for green stuff had the shipment delayed so that the goods were ruined.

Mrs. William Chase of York has been the guest of relatives in town.

Miss Helen Ireland, who has been passing the winter with her aunt in West Medford, Mass., is now the guest of Miss Lizette Tallman of Richmond, Me.

Mrs. William Fernald, who has been so dangerously ill with pneumonia, is now reported to be rapidly improving. If the frost continues to come out of the ground for the next week as it has for the past week, spring plowing may be commenced very soon.

Noah E. Emery of Kittery Point has been appointed administrator of the estate of Josiah Foye, late of North Kittery.

The crosswalks have received the attention of the street commissioner and there is no more complaint on account of a lack of digging up.

The house occupied by the late Carpenter Leonard Hanscom on Echo street will soon be offered for sale, it is reported.

THEY LIKE NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Prominent Jurists and Others Write to N. J. Bacheelder.

Concord, March 13.—That the meeting of the state board of trade, which was held in this city yesterday afternoon, and the evening banquet, which was a compliment bestowed by the Concord Commercial club, will have a beneficial result is generally admitted here today, and confirming reports have been received from various places throughout the state. A brief synopsis of the remarks of the leading speakers has appeared in this paper, but one speech was over looked that has a decided homelike flavor to it. Reference is made to the after-dinner remarks of Nathaniel J. Bacheelder, national lecturer, master of the state grange, secretary of the state board of agriculture and candidate for gubernatorial honors. His remarks in part were as follows:

"The lines separating city and country life have been greatly softened in recent years and the relation of boards of trade to boards of agriculture are becoming more intimate year by year. It is not a difficult matter to discern a reason for this. The isolation of farm life and the exclusiveness of city society have been dispelled by the easy means of communication between country and city. Electric roads, rural telephones, rural free delivery, the grange and Old Home Week have brought the farmers to your doors and carried you to theirs for business, recreation and pleasure."

"Contrary to the quite common belief outside the state there had been no decline in New Hampshire agriculture. The development of manufacturing has taken from agriculture its prominence as a state industry and the changed methods of farming have caused a moderate decline in acreage of improved land, that not adapted to pasture or devoted to growing wood to pasture or devoted to growing wood and timber, but the cash value of the annual farm products of the state was never equal to that of the present time."

"It is the tendency of business and professional men to establish summer homes in rural sections of the state and to the summer boarding industry annually leaving from $6,000,000 to $8,000,000 here to which I desire to specially refer. Towns in which the appraised valuation of real estate for taxation purposes has been doubled within a period of ten years and farms by the score upon which $50,000 each has been invested by purchasers will go far in establishing the advantages to rural New Hampshire from this movement. About 1000 New Hampshire farms have already been purchased for this purpose and more than $2,000,000 invested upon them by recent purchasers. These 1000 farms are the summer homes of 12,000 people during the summer months. We have recently written the owners of these farms inquiring how much they have invested and how they enjoy their New Hampshire summer homes and the replies received are of an exceedingly interesting character. They have come from men who are leaders in national affairs as well as from former city residents of our own state and give evidence of the highest appreciation of New Hampshire air, climate and scenery as found in our rural towns."

"Secretary Hay, who has an elegant summer place at Newbury, says: 'I am greatly pleased with the air, water and scenery and have nowhere found a more beautiful spot.' 'I could refer you to numerous other statements of a similar nature, from eminent jurists, authors, capitalists, clergymen and statesmen, but it is not necessary. The establishment of summer homes in our rural towns is doing much in civilizing the country and civilizing the city, of I may be allowed the expression, to the advantage of both and to the welfare of the state. New Hampshire's greatest possibilities for future growth and development are along the line of utilization of our rugged hillsides and picturesque villages as homes of people of wealth and refinement from all parts of the world. Such results will bring new life and vigor to rural New Hampshire and will be an advantage to the cities which you represent. It will give us better roads, better schools, better means of communication, better social privileges, and, in short, a better state. Country and city are alike interested in the movement and it will still further remove the barriers between country and city life."

ON THE DIAMOND.

Tilly will play with the Maplewoods again this year.

The soldiers at Fort Constitution are limbering up for the season and say they will have a good team this summer.

Manager Don of the Dover team thinks he has the cleverest first baseman in the New England league. He is a youngster who covered the initial bag with telling effect last season. It is said that he stands 6 feet 2 inches in his stocking feet, weighs 190 pounds, and is a terrific hitter, and can sprint one hundred yards a trifle under 11 seconds. He bats from Maine.

Varney of Dover, Dartmouth's crack twirler for two seasons, has at last signed a contract with the Montreal team of the Eastern league for this season.

Pitcher Taylor, the deaf mute, known as "Dummy" Taylor, has decided to cast his fortunes with the American league this season and has signed with the Cleveland club. Last year Taylor pitched fairly good ball for the New York team.

The West Point cadets have refused to change the date of their game with the naval cadets from May 17 to a date in April. The naval academy wanted the change, so that members of the first class who graduate on May 1 could take part, which would have put the teams on an equal footing.

W. A. Lange, the former center fielder of the Chicago National League club, is to establish himself in an elegant new home in San Francisco as soon as the carpenters can make it ready for him. Lange has purchased a lot in Sixth avenue overlooking the golf links and the ocean. He intends to erect a fine home for himself and wife, will have a big stable for his ponies and will go in for golf.

When Tim Hurst was counted out of the diamond game base ball lost an original genius. During the recent visit of Sir Tim to Cincinnati he added a few stories to the collection he has given fandom. Somebody recalled the dead end of racing at night and Rosedale's rise and fall.

"One of the funniest things I ever saw on a ball field took place when Chris Von der Ahe had the ponies over in St. Louis," said the little Celt to Ben Mulford. "It was getting dark one afternoon at the park and the fans were yelling at Bob Emslie, burning matches and setting fire to the fact that it was getting dark. Bob kept 'em a piece of light all around the track which surrounded the field. Chris had turned the switch and the game was finished by electric light."—Sporting News.

Great is Griffith, says the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, and ball players of both leagues must remove their chapeaux to the little man whose arm stands the wear of years and whose head never loses one atom of his cleverness or scientific acumen. Griffith works in an artistic way all the time he is in the box. He never seems to throw the ball with all his force, never draws the arm far back and slams in the balls, as so many of the young pitchers have to do. There is always an impression of ease and lack of actual hard labor. His performance is that of a man who knows plenty of reserve force for any emergencies. The ball goes over the plate at a tantalizing angle, and yet seems almost uncatchable, so far as landing it in proper places is concerned. With men on bases Griffith keeps cool, plumps them right over, and usually wins out on generalship and sheer determination.

NEW HAMPSHIRE AT ST. LOUIS.

Some time ago it was suggested in The Union that it New Hampshire is to be represented at the St. Louis exhibition, it should send something in which people would be interested, and which would give the visitors to the exhibition a better idea of the state than all the industrial or agricultural examples which could be gathered together would give. The cost of the construction of such a model of the state as is suggested for Washington, of the United States, would doubtless be prohibitive, but perhaps it is not so clearly out of the question that a model of the mountain section of the state might be made, at a reasonable cost, and it would be certain to attract attention both by reason of its uniqueness and the interest everywhere taken in the White mountains. To be of any value, it would have to be perfectly "raised map of Switzerland." It could be made, also, on a comparatively large scale, which would add to its interest. Even if this plan could not be carried out, something might be devised with a similar object in view—to give visitors to the exhibition a vivid impression of New Hampshire and her many attractions.—Manchester Union.

NEWFIELDS.

Newfields, March 13.—The members of Osgood lodge, I. O. O. F., of Portsmouth were the guests of Fraternity lodge at its hall last evening, when the initiatory degree was worked on four candidates. The ceremony was performed in a credible manner by the guests. About three hours were passed in the hall in secret session, and about twelve o'clock the assembly removed to Elm tavern, where an elaborately prepared supper was awaiting them. A merry session was spent at the supper table, where about sixty people, including several non-members, partook of one of Landlord Haley's daintily prepared spreads.

Miss Lilla Hurd of Berwick, Me., is the guest of Mrs. Joseph Haley.

The annual school meeting is arranged for Saturday evening at seven o'clock.

Mrs. William Paul and daughter, Mrs. D. G. Langlands, have returned from Boston, where they have spent the winter.

FRIDAY, MARCH 14, 1902.

By the re-election of William E. Peirce as city clerk, the office remains in competent hands. Mr. Peirce is a natural-born accountant and has given the strictest attention to the duties of the position since they were first entrusted to him a year ago. It is justice to him to say that his record fully equals, if it does not excel, that of any other man who has ever served in that particular corner of city hall. His accommodating spirit, has also gone far toward making him popular with all having any business with the city clerk's department.

HE HASN'T DONE IT.

When "Teddy" Roosevelt took the presidential chair, thousands of people in the land (Republicans, it must be acknowledged as well as democrats,) held up their hands in horror and prophesied that the Ship of State would go to smash. He would run her on some rock, they said, before he had been in the White House a month. But the stanch craft still cuts the waves proudly and the strenuous young American at the helm gives no indication of looking her on any of the dangerous reefs that always lurk on every hand. "Teddy" has not wrecked the country yet—and he never will.

IT SHOULD BE.

The Cuban republic should be granted reciprocity, and at once. The democratic minority who are opposing it must recognize that it is the proper solution of the problem which has taxed all the philosophy of congress for too long. Yet they persist, probably out of mere partisan feeling, in trying to rig the wheels of reciprocity. Meanwhile Cuba is getting so restive as to be almost bitter toward this government, because of the exasperating delay in effecting legislation for her relief. Reciprocity is right. The martyred McKinley believed so, and when did his judgment ever play his country false?

Newington, March 12.
A very successful special meeting of East Rockingham Pomona grange was held with Piscataqua grange, No. 175, on Wednesday. The 9th degree was conferred on candidates. A fine dinner was served at noon, furnished by the members of Piscataqua grange. A public session was held at two p. m., when a very interesting programme was presented, consisting of a discussion, "Resolved, That Lying Gossip Does More Harm than Intemperance (alcoholic)," an address "Some Recollections of Farm Life Fifty Years Ago," by Dr. Horace G. Leslie of Amesbury, Mass., was very much enjoyed, also readings and instrumental music.

ADD UP THE GAINS.

The virtue of one dose is so small you can't see any change. But add together all the little virtues from all the little doses and the effect is very marked.

In consumption, as in other cases, the results secured from continued treatment with Scott's Emulsion come from the accumulation of many small gains. A little gain in strength each day—a little gain in weight each day—if continued for weeks, amounts to something.

The fact that Scott's Emulsion can be taken for so long a time without the slightest inconvenience is greatly in its favor as a medicine for consumptives. Such a medicine gives itself time to do good.

It makes new flesh and strengthens the lungs.

ACTION AGAINST CAFES.

Instituted by the Rev. John Bradford at Hampton Election.

At Hampton's town meeting Tuesday, the Rev. John N. Bradford, pastor of the Methodist church, instituted action against cafes, restaurants and places of refreshment in the village and at the beach, which he wishes to close on Sundays, not excepting the street railway Casino. His suggestions fell on deaf ears and no action is likely to ensue, although J. Freeman Williams, Albert Neils and Enoch P. Yeakey were appointed a committee to make recommendations in the matter. A year ago Mr. Bradford charged that the Hampton beach improvement company had violated the terms of its ninety-nine year lease of a large tract of the town's beach land, by tolerating the sale of liquor in buildings erected on its holdings, and Messrs. Bradford, Williams and Young were appointed a committee of investigation. They reported yesterday, finding that one Jesse had held a government license.

This report colored several other matters. They held that the land on the ocean side of the beach street, including the street itself, belongs to the town, and that the street railway has no right to extend its tracks beyond the Casino, to lay out lawns and flower beds on the ocean side of the street, etc.

NERVOUSNESS AND NERVE.

The more nervous a man is, the less nerve he has. That sounds paradoxical, but it isn't; for nerve is stamina. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives nerve. It tones the whole system, perfects digestion and assimilation, and is therefore the best medicine a nervous person can take.

If you get tired easily, mentally or physically, take it—it will do you good.

WITH THE THEATRICAL FOLK.

Kathryn Kidder, it is stated, will bring the season of Molly Pitcher to a close shortly.

Frank L. Perley and George W. Lederer will star Marie Cahill next season in a new musical comedy.

Amelia Bingham has decided to postpone the production of Hearts Affaire until next season, and to continue The Chubbers.

John M. Welch, manager of Finnigan's hall, will next season send on the road Nick Carter's detective play, A Hold Up.

A Thoroughbred Tramp played to so crowded a house at Denver, Col., the other night, that the police stopped the sale of tickets.

Anna Held in The Little Duchess is said to have broken all records at the Chestnut street theatre, Philadelphia, playing to over $25,000 in two weeks.

Bedlam Godfrey has resigned from Kathryn Kidder's company and has joined the cast of Morocco Bound at the Columbia theatre, playing the light comedy part.

A. G. Delamater has been engaged as general press representative for the Bradburys and Corrie attractions. He will be acting manager for that firm's production of Sweet Clover next season.

Joseph Hart and McVillie Baker, artists of Foxy Granpa, at work on a new musical comedy, to be called The Country Club, which will have a production next season, probably by William A. Brady.

At the close of this season E. M. Holland's contract with Charles Frohman will end. Next season he will star either under his own management or the direction of another. Mr. Holland—like many another actor—is looking for a good play.

Explained.

"And haven't you got any more money?" asked the sweet young thing selling cinnamons at the church fair.

"Yes! I've got a dollar," reluctantly admitted the unfortunate but truthful young man. "But I put it in the sole of my stocking before putting on my shoes so as to have something to pay my car fare home."—Brooklyn Eagle.

White as a Color.

Speaking scientifically, white is a combination of all colors—that is, the pure light of the sun when decomposed by the spectrum analysis shows that it is made up of all the colors. Speaking popularly, white is a color, as a paint, and is not a color, as when we say that a person was "perfectly colorless."

CARE OF THE HAIR.

How to Prevent Baldness and Premature Greyness.

The reason there are more bald heads among men than women is that the man's hair, with its tightness around the head, seriously interferes with the circulation of the blood through the scalp, thus affecting the nourishment of the scalp and hair, says the New York Press. The roots of the hair need to be exercised to give them strength and the scalp exercised to keep it elastic and loose. A woman's hair is exercised in the dressing. The pulling keeps the scalp loose.

If women should cut their hair and wear their hats as tight as men do, there would be as many bald women as men. Men should wear light hats and wear them no longer than is necessary, changing the hat's position to relieve the pressure and to give the fresh air access to the scalp.

If the hair seems weak, do not cut it as closely as you have before. Pull it daily to strengthen the roots and stimulate the scalp. Wash the hair only once a month. The frequent washing robs the roots of the required nourishment. The scalp should receive scrupulous attention, and if the best bristle brushes are used night and morning the practice not only will help to keep the hair and scalp clean, but will give the friction required for the scalp to open the oil glands and nourish the roots.

Rinse the hair after washing three or four times thoroughly, dry and give a sun bath. If the hair is naturally dry dip the fingers in pure olive oil for the massage. To promote a healthy condition of the hair and prevent baldness and premature grayness nothing equals massage.

The movement used in massage for the scalp is simple. Place the thumbs at the base of the skull and use the four fingers of each hand with which to knead firmly. Push the fingers into the scalp forward and at the same time in a rotary movement, kneading firmly up over the crown of the head and from the temple in a like manner, covering the entire head. All scalp massage should be accompanied by good toils.

Here are a few formulas used by a prominent physician:

For falling hair: Eau de cologne, 2 ounces; tincture cantharides, 2 drams; oil of lavender and oil of rosemary, each 10 drops. Shake well and use at least twice a day.

Quinine tonic: Sulphate of quinine, 20 grains; bay rum, 4 drams; glycerin, 4 drams; tincture cantharides, 2 drams; tincture capsicum, 2 drams; distilled water to make 16 fluid ounces. Mix and dissolve and let stand twenty-four hours. Then filter. If color is desired, add red sanders.

For oily hair: Witch hazel, 2 ounces; alcohol, 2 ounces; distilled water, 1 ounce; rosin, 40 grains. Rub well into scalp every night.

Lauder's Day rum, 5 ounces; tincture cantharides, 1 ounce; olive oil, 1 ounce. For oily hair, add ammonia, 1 ounce.

Ammonia, soda or borax irritates scalp with dandruff and never should be used in the shampoo.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

An Important Capture.

The capture of General Lucban on the island of Samar is considered by the war department the most important military event in the Philippines since Aguinaldo's capture. General Lucban is one of the most energetic and fiercest fighters among the Filipinos. He is said to be a half breed.

GENERAL LUCBAN.

a mixture of Chinese and Filipino stock, and has been an irreconcilable foe from the first. He had various fast-nesses in the mountains of Samar, from which he would descend upon the coast towns, and he appeared to have the entire population of the island completely under his control.

He Loves Burke's "Peerage."

One of Andrew Carnegie's friends made the apparently contradictory statement that the steel king "has no use for lords and yet loves Burke's Peerage" more than any other book in his library." Then he explained. It seems that Mr. Carnegie was always and is still an ardent admirer of James G. Blaine, with whom one summer he took a coaching trip through England. As a souvenir of this vacation the American statesman presented the millionaire with an elaborately bound and very handsome copy of the famous book, in which are recorded the historic and honorable facts about all the noble families of Great Britain and Ireland.

"Mr. Carnegie has read and studied that book by the hour," continued his friend, "and while thus removing his memories of a man he so admired has accumulated a remarkable knowledge of peerage history, especially that which pertains to the Scottish nobility."—Philadelphia Press.

A Star Customer.

Rutherford Stuyvesant's return to America always gives an air of bustle to the old fashioned locality of Stuyvesant square, and the lights gleaming in the great mansion give this neighborhood of other days once more a festive appearance. Rutherford Stuyvesant is really Stuyvesant Rutherford. He changed his name in order to benefit by an inheritance from his Stuyvesant relatives. He is a brother of Winthrop Rutherford and Mrs. Henry White, the wife of the charge d'affaires at the court of St. James. Mr. Stuyvesant has many ideas of another day, and one of these is the employment of a barber, who comes each day to shave him. Now valets are supposed to perform this service, but in former years Mr. Stuyvesant always went to a certain barber's in the vicinity, and his advent in this country brings great joy to the shop, as he is the star customer.—New York Times.

Designer of the Meteor.

A. Cary Smith, designer of the German emperor's yacht Meteor, whose launching was the fixed occasion of Prince Henry's visit to this country, is one of the leading nautical designers of America. Mr. Smith designed the Yampa, a steel keel schooner, which R. Snyder Palmer took to Europe. At the opening of the Kiel canal the Kaiser saw the Yampa and was so much

A. CARY SMITH.

Impressed that he sought and learned the name of her designer. Finally the emperor purchased the Yampa, which he renamed Iduna and presented to the Empress Frederica, and the yacht has since been used as a sort of training ship for the royal family. When the Kaiser decided to build a new royal yacht, he sent the head naval constructor of the German navy to America to look over designers and builders, and he was not disappointed when that expert reported in favor of Mr. Smith. So the latter received the order, and the Meteor, recently launched at the yards of Townsend & Downey, at Shooter's island, is the result.

When Finished.

Busy persons, forced to defend themselves from interminable talkers who have little to say, can appreciate a hint to which Henry IV. of France once resorted. A parliamentary deputy called upon him and made a long speech.

The king listened patiently for a time, then he decided that his visitor would do well to condense his remarks. He took him by the hand and led him to where they could see the gallery of the Louvre.

"What do you think of that building? When it is finished, it will be a good thing, will it not?"

"Yes," replied the man of many words, not guessing what was coming next.

"Well, monsieur, that is just the way with your discourse," was the king's mild observation.

He Was Only One.

A soldier who had just enlisted was placed on guard over a cannon. It was not long before he abandoned his post and went to a tavern not far off, where he indulged in the flowing bowl.

"Fellow, why did you abandon your post?" exclaimed the captain, who happened to put in an appearance.

"Captain," was the reply of the fugitive son of Mars, "I've tried to lift that cannon, and I'm satisfied no one can carry it away, and if more than one of the enemy comes after it I can't keep them off."

How to Make a Bulldog Let Go.

Says a breeder of bulldogs: "The quickest way to release a person from the jaws of a bulldog, if he be unfortunate enough to be bitten, is by catching the dog's hind paw, in the center of which is an exceedingly tender spot called the heart. This should be pressed or, even better, the paw taken into the mouth and bitten with the teeth. The dog will relinquish the hold at once. It is a desperate remedy, but a sure one, and one that is resorted to by the professional dogfighters."

FIRM FOUNDATION.

Nothing Can Undermine it in Portsmouth.

People are sometimes slow to recognize true merit and they cannot be blamed for so many in the past have been humbugged. The experience of hundreds of Portsmouth residents expressed publicly through newspapers and other sources places Doan's Kidney Pills on a firm foundation.

Mr. Arlon A. Ballou, of 31 Maplewood avenue, says:—"I had something wrong with my kidneys for eight months, and the pain and annoyance kept increasing instead of diminishing. I got so bad that I could not attend to my ordinary occupation, and had to knock off. In my back and over my kidneys there was a constant aching sharp twinges to shoot through my joints. During these attacks when my back was very bad I had urinary weakness that was very embarrassing and inconvenient. I thought Doan's Kidney Pills might help me and I got a box at Philbrick's pharmacy on Congress street. I did not take more than one-half of it before I was free from the whole kidney trouble."

A CAPITALIST OF CHICAGO

[Original.]
One hot day many years ago a boy lay sleeping beside a road leading to the town of Chicago. Little Jane Trevor happened to pass and stopped to look at him. Harold Gwynne was an orphan, making his way to the city to find some means of making a living. Coming to a patch of soft grass under a tree just without the fence that inclosed Jenny's humble home, he threw himself on his back and fell asleep. That very morning Jenny had received a silver dollar with which to purchase a new doll and a dress for it and had started out to make her purchases. He had no sooner shut the gate behind her than she saw Harold. There was a troubled look on the young face even in sleep, and his cheeks were pale and thin. One arm was stretched out, with the palm of the hand turned up. Jenny was not a practical child. Indeed, he had a great deal more heart than she, or she never would have yielded to the impulse to give up her beautiful doll and bestow her dollar on the sleeping boy. That is what she did, putting the coin in his open palm very softly, then stealing away to watch round behind a tree how he would act when he should discover his good fortune.

Now, Harold, unlike Jenny, had on his shoulders a practical head. A successful business man had once told him that he could never make a fortune unless he had money to make it with. He had fallen asleep thinking how to get money in order to make more money. In his sleep he saw a little girl approach and deposit something in his hand, which he in some way infused with what he was dreaming of—capital.

When he awoke, before changing his position he looked at his palm, where a silver dollar was shining in a sunbeam making its way through the leaves of the tree above. Jenny was beside him with glee, seeing him start up, close his fingers to the coin, look about him, then at the coin. Throwing it in his pocket, he got up and started briskly in the direction of the city. Jenny returned to the house happy at having made the range boy happy. That night she was treated to a scolding from her mother, who declared that she had no money and would eventually end in the poorhouse.

Fifteen years passed. Jane Trevor lost her father and her mother, but her father's prediction had been verified. She gave away all her money and, having nothing with which to buy bread, had put a sign on her little home showing that it was for sale.

One afternoon a carriage stopped at the gate and a gentleman alighted and knocked at the door. It was opened by Jane herself.

"I notice that this place is in the market, and I called to inquire the price," he said.

Jane invited him to enter. "I think," she said, "I ought to get a thousand dollars for it."

"If you will," said the man, "a thousand dollars. I'll give you five hundred."

"What would you want with such a place?" asked Jane.

"Years ago, when I was a friendless boy, I received a piece of money in my place. I invested it and reinvested it and its accumulations until I made a large fortune."

Jane's eyes opened wide.

"You are the boy?" She stopped short.

"That fell asleep?"

"Under that tree, with your arm stretched out and your palm open?"

"And you are the girl?"

"That dropped my silver dollar into my hand?"

"Made my fortune?"

"Got a scolding from my father, who said that I had no common sense and would eventually land in the poorhouse?"

"So that dollar came from you?"

"It did."

"Very well. The first thing I have to do is to return it with interest."

"It was a gift. I'll take neither it or interest."

"Will you accept a little common sense or, rather, business shrewdness?"

"Perhaps."

"When I came here, I determined to give the place where I had received my capital if it cost ten times its value. I value you haven't the 'common sense' to appreciate. The city is growing this way, and this lot is worth $50,000. Ten times $5,000 is $50,000, here, if you wish you can stick me $50,000."

"It isn't worth any such sum. Besides, you are trying to induce me to accept repayment for the dollar I gave poor boy. That I will never do."

Harold Gwynne, with all his experience, found himself checked by a woman who had no common sense. He sat thinking.

"How would you like," he said presently, "to be my dispenser of charities?"

"I would like it very much."

"You may enter upon your duties as soon as you like."

With this the capitalist departed. The next day Jane Trevor received a book showing $50,000 to her credit, with instructions to distribute it among the poor during the year. Each year thereafter she received a like amount and was happy in being the instrument of making others happy. Finally Harold Gwynne convinced her that the plan would work better if she were his wife, and she married him.

BETWEEN GENTLEMEN

[Copyright, 1902, by C. E. Lewis.]
There were eight of us who left the steamer at Naples, and two of the party were Colonel Dayton and his wife. It was the talk about the steamer that they were on their bridal tour, but there were certain reasons why some of us did not believe it. It made no difference that he was at least fifteen years her senior, but she seemed altogether too melancholy for a bride. She was a woman about twenty-eight years old and as handsome as one as you would meet in a week's travel, but it was evident that she had to force every smile that appeared on her face. One night two days before we reached Naples she would have thrown herself overboard had not my berthmate been at hand to stop her, but he did not speak of the matter to any one but me. When he had related the incident, he added:

"It's nothing to us who this couple are, but I've made up my mind that it's a case of elopement. The colonel is evidently an old bachelor, while she is a wife."

They were driven away in a carriage when the steamer reached the city, and it was not for three or four days that I found by accident where they had gone. They were occupying a villa in the suburbs and seemed to shun publicity. I met the colonel two or three times in my walks, but he looked straight into my face and made no sign of recognition. About ten days had passed and I was out on the mountain side one day when I saw the colonel approaching by a path from the right. At the same moment a second man came up from the direction of town, and a moment later the three of us were standing together beside a large boulder in an old vineyard. I had my eyes on both as they drew together. They paid not the least attention to me, but bowed slightly to each other, and each changed color for an instant as they looked into each other's eyes. I somehow felt that they knew each other, and the position became embarrassing for me. I was about to pass on when the newcomer lifted his hand in protest and quietly said to the other:

"I presume the lady is here in Naples with you?"

"She is," was the reply as the colonel carelessly tapped the boulder with his cane.

"And you were rather expecting me?"

"Oh, well!"

The men looked away from each other for a moment. The stranger was a much younger man, and his dress, looks and demeanor were proofs of a gentleman. It came to me that he must be the husband of the eloping woman and that he had followed in pursuit. Only the flashing of his eyes told of the volcano raging within his breast. His face was as impassive as a mask and his voice as even as if speaking to a friend at the club. He looked away over the fields for half a minute and then turned and queried:

"You will of course grant me satisfaction?"

"Certainly," replied the colonel, with a slight bow.

"Here and now?"

"Well, I am not armed, but as early as you please in the morning."

"Thanks—as soon after sunrise as you can make it convenient. In the meantime—"

"In the meantime I shall make all necessary arrangements," finished the colonel as he sauntered on.

The other looked after him for awhile and then turned to me and queried:

"Were you a fellow passenger of his on the Sovereign?"

"Yes."

"Then you probably understand. I wish to avoid public gossip as much as possible. I shall kill him here tomorrow morning. Will you be present and see that it is honorably done?"

"But the police?"—I began, when he checked me with:

"Money will silence them and gloss it over. Kindly let me expect you. Here is my card."

During the first half of the evening I made up my mind to have nothing further to do with the affair, but before going to bed I decided to follow it up, and the sun had not been up above fifteen minutes when I was at the boulder. Colonel Dayton was already there, walking back and forth, and after a hasty bow he gave me no further attention. The other came up ten minutes later, and they bowed to each other. Each had a pistol case under his arm, and as they stooped over them I stepped off ten paces. There was no choice of positions. Each loaded his own weapon, and I saw that both were gold-handled revolvers. They were not two minutes getting ready, and then my gentlemen nodded to each other and sauntered down to the rock marking the tenth pace. I did not exactly know what was required of me until both looked at me. Then I stepped aside and counted, "One—two—three—four!" The two reports were blended in one, and as Colonel Dayton dropped his weapon and sank down the other came forward and calmly said:

"I aimed at his heart. Kindly see to all further arrangements. Here is a thousand pounds. If you need any more, you have my address. Thank you very much."

The police called it a duel and were satisfied with my deposition, and the colonel was buried in Naples. On the day of the funeral I saw the lady driving down to the wharf to take the steamer for England, and that was the end of it. London society had its gossip, but a betrayed husband also had his revenge.

IN SWEEPING COSTUME

[Original.]
Miss Edith Abbott, being of a practical turn of mind and her mother having but one servant, volunteered to "do" the parlor once a week. One Saturday morning, broom in hand, dress pinned back, sleeves rolled above the elbows, a towel over her head to keep the dust from her hair, she heard a ring at the doorbell. Before she could escape she heard the maid open the door and the familiar voice of Mr. Alexander Hathaway, a newly appointed officer in the United States army, asking for her father. Fearing that the maid might be stupid enough to show him into the parlor, and not caring to be caught in sweeping costume, she stepped between a portiere and folding doors, intending to open the doors and leave by the dining room. The doors were off the slide, and she could not open them. Meanwhile Mr. Hathaway entered the parlor and took a seat.

"Wonder what he wants with papa?" queried Miss Abbott, eying him through an opening in the portiere.

Mr. Abbott, a dignified gentleman, came in, eyed the comer curiously, bade him good morning and waited for him to tell what he had come for.

"My regiment is ordered to Manila," began the young man haltingly.

"Indeed!" said Mr. Abbott. What interest could this have for him?

"Of course that takes me, you know."

Mr. Abbott did not know and did not care. He repeated the word "Indeed!" which is valuable from not meaning anything.

"The men are on the train now. It is to start at 12 noon. I secured leave to come here and speak with you a moment." The lieutenant looked at his watch. "It is half past 11. I have fifteen minutes here and fifteen minutes to make the train. What I came for is to ask you if you have any objection to my asking Edith to be my wife. I would like her to join me at San Francisco, be married there and go out to Manila."

Edith's heart jumped into her throat. Alex. Hathaway, rich, handsome, in every way attractive! She had never dreamed that he would ask for such a commonplace person as she regarded herself.

Mr. Abbott took out his own watch. "You haven't a surplus of time," he said, "so I will come to the point at once. I will gladly welcome you for a son-in-law if my daughter is herself willing. Have you asked her?"

"No. I thought that if you should object it would be better not to speak to her now."

"I'll call her. Edith! Edith! Where are you? You're wanted at once!"

Now, if there is anything a woman is punctilious about it is the acceptance of a proposal or the ceremony of marriage. To Edith Abbott the idea of being wooed and won in sweeping costume was abhorrent. Besides, she dreaded lest the aristocratic young officer, seeing her in such a dress, should repent his choice. She stood stock still.

"Nancy," shouted Mr. Abbott, "find Miss Edith immediately. She must be somewhere in the house."

"Yes, sir."

Mr. Abbott sat down and waited. Mr. Hathaway paced the floor impatiently. Edith looked at them both from behind the portiere and wished that some kind fairy would suddenly transform her costume to a more becoming one. Presently the maid came in and reported that Miss Edith was not up stairs and must have gone out.

Edith herself, looking at her lover, made up her mind that he was not too gentlemanlike occasionally to say bad words. Both men looked at their watches.

"Well," said the suitor, disappointed, "I fear for the present the matter must be given up. After I reach Manila I will, with your permission, write to her. Perhaps it is better, after all, for me to investigate the climate and accommodations. Meanwhile I think you will agree with me that for you to tell her of this visit would place her in an unpleasant position. Better wait till she gets it from me by letter."

Miss Abbott was by no means disposed to give the young man so good an opportunity to change his mind. Nevertheless it was not till the two men were shaking hands prior to separation that she threw aside the portieres and stood, red as a peony, before them. Hathaway caught her in his arms.

"Sweetheart, you have heard all?"

Edith was mute.

"Two minutes!" said Mr. Abbott, watch in hand.

"Will you?" pleaded the lieutenant.

"Never in this horrid togethery."

"There is no greater test of beauty than the costume you wear. You are prettier in it than I ever saw you."

"Do you really mean it?"

"Certainly. I swear it!"

"I don't believe you!"

"Your answer?"

"Thirty seconds!" called the father.

"Answer to what—going to Manila or—"

"Both."

"Which first?"

"Ten seconds!" from the timekeeper.

"Do you love me?"

No reply.

"Five seconds!"

"Do you love me?" repeated the officer.

ccr.

"Time's up!" with a snap of the lid.

"Yes."

Lieutenant Hathaway snatched a kiss and hurried away. Having forced a woman to accept his proposal in sweeping costume, he felt that he had nothing to fear from the Philippines.

THE TIME FOR SPLIT PEAS.

Dishes of Them That Are Nearly as Nourishing as Meat and Are Not So Expensive.

Peas pudding, hot, peas pudding cold. Peas pudding in the pot nine days old. This rhyme, accompanied by a slapping of hands, is a familiar game to most young Americans, but few of them know the dish, which is an old English one. This is the recipe:

Put a pint and a half of split peas in water over night, with a kind of carbonate of soda. Before boiling remove any of the peas that float. Boil the peas until tender with a little salt and any desired flavor, a bit of lemon peel, garlic thyme, or a little of all three. Drain and rub them through a colander. When smooth, add two ounces of butter, a dash of pepper and two eggs well beaten. Flour a pudding cloth or steamer, turn in the pudding and boil for an hour. Finely chopped bacon may be added to the pudding if desired. As bacon and split peas may be kept on hand, this pudding makes a good dinner when emergencies arise, says the Kansas City Star.

An excellent winter salad may be made with either dried lima beans or peas. Soak until they are very soft, and boil in salted water until tender, but not mushy. Drain and cool. Squeeze over the beans or peas the juice of an onion and add one or two bits from a can of tomatoes, which may be emptied and saved for another occasion. When tomato is used a pinch of dried thyme gives a delicious flavor. Serve with a French or a sour cream dressing.

A delicious dish sold in vegetarian restaurants, usually under the name of cutlets or vegetarian beefsteak, is made as follows:

This is really a hearty meal in itself. Soak a quart of split peas over night in a large kettle. Pour off the water and rinse; cover with three pints of water and put on the fire, with a spoonful each of salt and sugar and two cloves of garlic. Don't omit the garlic. Remember, the pane of American cookery is lack of flavor. If you have a ham bone or a chicken bone to put in, so much the better. Let the soup simmer for several hours, on the back of the stove. Then add one or two cups of milk, a bit of butter and a dash of black pepper and it is ready to serve.

A delicious basket dish is made by cubing a large baked dish with a clove of garlic. Turn into this a pint of split peas soaked until soft. Chop a large onion very fine and spread over the top of the peas with pepper and salt. If you have left over gravy or stock pour it over the mixture. If not, cover with water, spreading over all bacon cut into the thinnest possible slices. Bake in the oven for two hours and add a little boiling water if the peas get too dry. This will be found a great improvement on baked beans.

As split peas are sold as low as four cents a quart, these dishes will be found very economical, with potatoes at eight cents.

WHY PA WAS MAD.

Under the Circumstances It Would Have Been Hard to Preserve One's Good Nature.

At the Selby banquet on a recent evening Rev. R. A. White, one of the speakers, told the following story, says the Chicago Tribune:

An old farmer walking down a country road one morning came to a spot where a huge load of hay had slid off the rack to the ground. A small boy, perhaps 12 years old, was working hard with a pitchfork, trying to pitch the hay back on the wagon. The farmer felt sorry for the poor little chap, and as it was nearly noon, asked him to come and have dinner and take a little rest.

"Come over to the house with me, sonny," he said, "and have some dinner. You'll feel more like working then."

"Well," said the boy, "I am tired and hungry, and I'd like some dinner very much, but pa would be angry with me if I went. He wouldn't like it a bit."

But the farmer was persistent. Finally he persuaded the boy to leave his work and come with him, the boy expressing the fear as he left that "Pa'll be awful mad."

They had a good country dinner, and the small boy displayed the best kind of an appetite. After dinner they lay down for half an hour in the shade of the big oaks. Finally the farmer escorted the boy back to the spot where the overturned load of hay lay in the highway. The boy picked up his pitchfork with a sigh.

"I feel a lot better," he said. "That dinner was great, but I tell you pa'll be awful mad at me for quitting work."

"What's the matter with your pa, anyhow?" asked the old farmer.

"Where is he?"

"Who, pa?" answered the small boy.

"Oh, pa's under the hay."

An Improvised Couch.

A girl who sighed for a luxurious divan in her room, and frowned discontentedly at the straight-backed sofa that occupied space there, had a happy thought that produced most satisfactory results—she simply had the back of the sofa taken off completely. This done, the rest was easy. Over it she threw a couch-cover long enough to reach the floor, spiking it in place with hat pins, and with pillows piled upon it her heretofore hopeless piece became a genuine delight.—Detroit Free Press.

Force of Habit.

"Doesn't it seem much stranger than driving a horse?" inquired the girl she had out to ride.

"Yes," admitted the girl who owned the automobile and was running it. "I haven't yet gotten over the feeling that I ought to push on the lines!"—Brooklyn Eagle.

THE KAISER'S NEW YACHT.

How the Meteor Came to Be Built in This Country.

It was in the spring of 1901 that Mr. J. Frederick Tams, secretary of the New York Yacht club, journeyed to Shooter's island and called on Mr. A. Cary Smith, naval designer. Mr. Tams entered upon a general discussion of matters maritime, as though it had been solely for this purpose that he had made the trip from the metropolis. In the course of the call, however, the conversation turned to yachts and their designing, and then it was that the real motive for Mr. Tams' visit declared itself.

"Well, now, Mr. Smith," said the secretary of America's representative yachting association, "I am very much interested in the question of yacht building at present, as I happen to be commissioned by a foreigner of title to find out under what conditions you would design a yacht for him."

"Indeed?" said Mr. Smith in a non-committal manner. "Well, Mr. Tams, before we go any further there is just one question I would like to ask you: Is the yacht of which you are speaking to be built in the United States or in a European shipyard?"

"Probably in Europe," was the reply.

"Humph! Well, then, let me say right now that under those circumstances I would not for a moment entertain the proposition of designing the yacht for your principal. I have not the slightest desire to make the plans for a boat only to have them altered and botched by some English or German builder who thinks he can improve on them and who then turns out on the world his work under my name."

"I tell you there is not enough money in the country of the person you are speaking of to buy plans from me under those conditions. And, what is more, although I cannot presume to speak authoritatively for Mr. Herreshoff, I feel pretty certain that he will say precisely the same thing to you as I have said. Good morning, Mr. Tams."

Mr. Smith's prognosis of the action of the Herreshoffs in the matter proved correct, and in consequence the Kaiser's yacht, the Meteor, was not only designed but also built by Mr. Smith.

Hastening out to Shooter's island one day after the contract had been placed, the emperor's agent informed Mr. Smith that he had been "commanded" to hurry the completion of the yacht so as to have it ready at an advance date.

"Indeed!" replied the imperturbable designer. "Well, now, Mr. Tams, just let me inform you of one fact—out here at this shipyard there is only one Kaiser, and I happen to be 'it.' Furthermore, when it comes to 'commanding' in shipbuilding, there are just two persons who are 'in it.' One of them is the designer and the other is Providence."

The Indians' Bishop.

Bishop Whipple's courage was prominently shown in his attitude toward the Indians. He was the Indians' bishop from the first. His dignity, his reserve, the humor lurking behind the sober mien, his truthfulness and staunch loyalty, his lovingly dubbed him "Straight Tongue" put him at once in touch with the Indian nature. Add to this his sense of justice, a dominant characteristic, and it was no marvel that the Indian problem should be almost the first problem faced on his coming to Minnesota as its bishop. Facing the problem, he fearlessly faced the Indians' enemies and their more discouraging lukewarm friends. He had to convert both the house of bishops and congress. He lived to see his conception of what was due the Indian and of what the Indian was capable of in a large measure successful. Bishop Whipple believed in the Indian; he believed all the good stories he told of him; he compelled a like belief in his unwilling brother bishops, in the prejudiced, even hostile clergy and laity and citizens of Minnesota.—Century.

Origin of a Famous Hymn.

Dr. Caylor in telling the story of a familiar hymn gives this interesting circumstance concerning "Onward, Christian Soldiers!" It seems that the one who wrote this hymn was trying to help his brother, who was a clergyman in the Church of England, to get his Sunday school in good marching order, so he thought this hymn might help, and he had the school led by one who carried a cross. Some gentlemen of the church found fault with the carrying of the cross and thought it looked popish.

"Well," he said, "we can leave that out, and I can alter the hymn, and we can sing it. 'With the cross of Jesus left behind the door.'" "Oh, no," said the good brother. "Perhaps you had better let it be as it is."

Throwing Men Overboard.

In ancient Scotland the barbarous custom existed which cost Jonah so much inconvenience. When a ship became unmanageable, it was usual to cast lots for the purpose of discovering who was responsible for the trouble, and the man upon whom the lot fell was condemned. Instead of human beings dogs used sometimes to be thrown into the sea with their legs bound.

To Fill Them Out.

Mrs. Borden-I notice you got a new suit of clothes today.

The Boarder—Yes; but they're too loose.

"Well, you can send them back and get that altered!"

"I've got a better scheme. I'm going to look up a good boarding house!"—Philadelphia Record.

PERHAPS FIFTY KILLED

By Gang Who Followed Murder as an Occupation

VICTIMS FIRST DRUGGED

Negress Who Was Leader of Crooks Tells How They Operated—Now Fears For Her Life If She Is Released From Jail

Beaumont, Tex., March 14.—John Welsh, a white man, who has been implicated, by allegation, by Mattie Bennett, the negro leader of the gang of robbers and murderers who have been operating here, was brought to Beaumont yesterday, having been arrested at Houston on the strength of the woman's confession. Welsh denies completely the murders. He was an iron moulder in the foundry where Benjamin Pearson, one of the murderers, worked.

The Bennett woman talked freely to a reporter in the jail yesterday. She confessed everything except direct murder and went fully into the details of the plan followed by the gang. "The business has been going on for six months," she said. "The men would go out to the saloons and street corners and find men that had money. They'd bring them to my house, and I and the other women would give them beer with knockout drops in it. Then the men would either beat them up there and rob them or take them out into the hobo ward. I don't know how many I've drugged, too many to remember; and all of them were robbed. I don't know what they folks that I've told the sheriff about will do to me. I know I'm safe in jail now, but if I ever get out they will kill me, if any of them are alive."

The Neches river, where five bodies of supposed victims of the gang were found, skirts the town of Beaumont. It is about 150 feet wide and 20 feet deep. In some places swamps run back from it. A body thrown into the swamps gets small chance of being found. It is true that 50 persons have disappeared from Beaumont, this may be the solution of the mystery about the missing.

In some of its features the case recalls the Bender family murders in Kansas, 20 years ago.

Live Baby Thrown In Garbage Can

Washington, March 14.—Dr. Charles L. Hagner, for 30 years a well-known physician in this city, was held for the action of the grand jury yesterday, as the result of an inquest over the body of a prematurely born baby of Mrs. Peter Blair, found alive and doubled up in a shoe box thrown into a garbage can in the rear of the Blair house. A colored woman identified Dr. Hagner as the man whom she saw place the box in the can. The latter, admitting that he was the man, said that he fully believed at the time that the child was dead.

Willing to Serve In Cabinet

Los Angeles, Cal., March 14.—William S. McCormick of Los Angeles has telegraphed to Senator Kearns at Washington that he will accept the position of secretary of the interior in President Roosevelt's cabinet, should a vacancy occur through the resignation of Senator Hitchcock. "All that has been done," said Mr. McCormick, "is that Senator Kearns and I have agreed to ask me whether I would accept the place, and I answered that if the president offered it I would accept."

A Pension Veto

Richmond, March 14.—Governor Montague yesterday vetoed the joint assembly resolution appropriating $300,000 for pensions for Confederate veterans. His message says in part: "All are agreed that the state should do its utmost to aid her needy and deserving veterans, but all must concede that the needy and deserving alone should be the recipients of the money appropriated."

Prince's Son Going to Sanatorium

Berlin, March 14.—Waldemar, the eldest son of Prince Henry of Prussia, is going with his father to Dr. Sahm's sanatorium at Whiteclay. Why Waldemar should be sent to this sanatorium mystifies persons near the court. One such person reports the gossip that Waldemar develops slowly mental.

Mandarins Breeding Trouble

Canton, March 14.—There is great dissatisfaction here at the extortionate taxes which the mandarins are levying under the pretext of meeting the instalments of the Chinese indemnity. The merchants have petitioned the sheng for redress, asserting that they fear the action of the mandarins will lead to an uprising.

Alleged Counterfeiter Held

Norfolk, March 14.—E. T. Sterling and Joseph Sherer, who were arrested on the charge of having flooded Haverhill with spurious 5-cent pieces, were held for the United States grand jury yesterday. At the hearing it was brought out that Sherer served a term in a penitentiary.

Fought to a Draw

Baltimore, March 14.—Joe Wolcott and Young Peter Jackson fought 10 rounds to a draw here last night. It was one of the fiercest contests ever witnessed here. Under the conditions of the match Wolcott was to put Jackson out or receive no part of the gate money.

A CHURCH LIGHTHOUSE.

Charleston, S. C., Has the Only One in the World.

The only church in the world so far as is known that is also a lighthouse is St. Philip's church, Charleston, S. C. St. Philip's, which is one of the oldest churches in America, is known as the "Westminster abbey of South Carolina," because within and about its walls so many distinguished men lie buried, including John C. Calhoun. The history of the old church is closely interwoven with that of South Carolina, and many of the most celebrated events in the history of the province are connected with it.

It is one of the sights of Charleston, and strangers are always taken to see it and shown its graves and monuments.

The most remarkable feature of the old church, however, is the fact that its lofty steeple serves the purpose of a lighthouse and is used to guide the seafarer and mariner safely into the port of Charleston. The use of the steeple as a lighthouse dates back to 1834, when the United States lighthouse department succeeded by dint of repeated efforts in inducing the vestry of the old church to allow a lantern to be placed in the upper story of the steeple to be used as a range light for vessels entering the harbor through the jetties at its mouth.

The light used is very powerful and is placed at an altitude of about 125 feet above the ground, so that it is easily visible thirty miles at sea. Ships making for Charleston harbor at night always keep a sharp lookout for St. Philip's light and as soon as they sight it get it into line with the beacon on Fort Mifflin and then make a straightaway run for the mouth of the jetties and up through them into the harbor of Charleston.

St. Philip's church steeple is considered one of the handsomest architectural in the world and always attracts the eye of strangers entering Charleston from the sea by its commanding height and artistic proportions.—St. Louis Republic.

NATURAL HISTORY.

There are forty-eight different kinds of house fly known and classified. The pig is the only domestic animal in which no case of cancer has been noted.

The Spanish mackerel is one of the fastest of food fishes and cuts the water like a yacht.

Fish swallow their food whole because they are obliged to keep continually opening and closing the mouth for the purpose of respiration.

Siamese cats, both in appearance and character, closely resemble pug dogs. Even their tails have the curious curl so familiar in these stolid dogs.

Animals are found to be subject to hypnotic influence. Lobsters, it is said, can be hypnotized by standing them on their heads five or ten minutes.

There is no wild breed of fowl to which the Brahma or Cochon can be traced. The gamecock seems to be descended from the Chinese jungle fowl.

The flesh fly produces about 20,000 young in a season. The larvae are hatched almost instantly from the egg and at once begin their work of destruction.

A Contrast.

"Papa, who is that gentleman over there on the porch?"

"Don't you remember him, my child? He is the gentleman we met in the restaurant today who chatted so pleasantly with us while he waited about twenty-five minutes for his lunch."

"He doesn't seem very pleasant now, papa."

"Oh, no. He's at home now. See him tearing the newspaper into shreds and trying to throw his hat through the door. He is very angry because he has taken his wife a little over four minutes to get his supper ready."—Indianapolis Sun.

HIS HORSES WERE WOODEN

But All the Same He Had to Pay For a Livery License

As "his honor" sat on the bench from which even landed justice was dispensed in the town of Lavilla, which flourished way down in Florida before the days of Greater Jacksonville, he was amazed to note among the prisoners at the bar a "paleface."

Casting the eagle eye of the law over the room, he was agitated still more to observe a "biled" shirt and standing collar and that these were worn by another white man.

The marshal, being called on, explained that one white gentleman was arrested by him for running a "flying jenny" without a license, and the other was his lawyer. To a man cast in a less heroic mold than the mayor such complete smashing of all records and invading of precedent would have been a Waterloo. A white man arrested in Lavilla and a lawyer appearing to plead in its court! To what are we coming?

Repressing all signs of such a strain on his judicial composure, the mayor announced that to fittingly mark so great an occasion he would disregard the calendar and take up the white man's case first.

The lawyer demanded the immediate discharge of the prisoner on the ground that there was no ordinance requiring "flying jenny" to pay a license and threw the court on its "beam ends" by asking for a copy of the ordinance book.

No one had seen it in years. Many doubted if there had ever been one. A whispered consultation was held between the mayor and the marshal and a search instituted which revealed the book, with a brick on top of it, supplying the place of a missing leg of the stove.

After looking vainly through the book for law on "flying jinnies" his honor delivered judgment as follows:

"Ordinance No. 11 requires all keepers of livery stables to pay a license of $10 and imposes a fine of twice the amount for running without a license. The defendant must pay both the fine and the license."

"But," objected the lawyer, "this man didn't run a livery stable; he runs a 'flying jenny.'"

"He keeps horses for hire, doesn't he?"

"Yes, but they are wooden horses, and he charges a nickel for one ride."

"The ordinance makes no line distinction. It says livery stables require a license. A livery stable is a place where horses are kept for hire. It makes no difference whether they are wooden horses or meat horses. Next case, Mr. Marshal."—New York Mail and Express.

Stone Throwing.

A propensity to throw stones regardless of consequences has been one of the earliest signs of natural depravity among men since time began and, we fear, must continue that way until the millennium ushers in the era when bad boys are no more and stones are confined to their proper and legitimate uses.

Anyway, the mischief wrought by this vicious and execrable habit looms up into serious proportions when the figures are given out by plate glass insurance men showing that it costs not less than $250,000 a year to make good the losses thus caused by reckless boys in this country alone.

With stone throwing costing $250,000 a year, carelessness in setting fires costing hundreds of millions more and heedless accidents causing immense sacrifice of property, the good people have many bills to foot which ought not to be theirs.—Leslie's Weekly.

The Coffee Heart.

The largest part of the coffee grown in the world is consumed in the United States, and some of our life insurance societies are beginning to realize how its excessive use increases the risks of life. Its effect is in shortening the long beat of the heart, and medical examiners for insurance companies have added the term "coffee heart" to their regular classification of the functional derangements of that organ. These physicians advise that the use of coffee be limited to not more than two cups a day. Coffee tapers, they say, are plentiful and are as much tied to their cups as the whisky toper. The effect of the coffee upon the heart is more lasting and consequently worse than that of liquor.—Detroit Free Press.

Advance Prayers.

A young Germantown mother in putting her five-year-old son to bed noticed that he clambered under the covers without saying his prayers. She grew reproachful. "Why, Warren, mother never knew you to forget your prayers before."

"Indeed, mother," was the reply, "I didn't forget. Grace and I said them for four nights during the rain yesterday, when we couldn't play. We would have got through the whole week if nurse had not come to dress us."

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

The New Hampshire prohibitionists met in convention at Concord yesterday and nominated John C. Berry of Plymouth for governor. The platform is practically the same as heretofore: Republicans and democrats are insensate. When you come to think that nine-tenths of the voting population of the state belongs to one or the other of the two parties mentioned it becomes a sweeping statement and shows that our pure watered brethren have very little faith in the honesty of the people. In fact it supports Bishop Potter's suggestion that New Hampshire people are hypocrites.—Nashua Press.

POLICE COURT.

This morning a short session of police court was held before Judge Samuel W. Emery. Robert Archibald was arraigned on charge of drunkenness to which he pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to be confined at Brentwood for a term of six months and pay costs of $6.50.

MUSICAL TREAT.

Grafton Club Groups Some Fine Artists In A Choice Concert At Peirce Hall.

The music-loving public of Portsmouth owe their most sincere thanks to the Grafton club for the treat offered them at Peirce hall on Thursday evening. Critical consideration of the concert stamps it as one of the most excellent ever given in this city.

Mrs. Alice H. Owen's part in the arrangement of the program was so valuable that she merits the warmest praise.

Leon Van Vliet, solo violinist of Boston and an artist of rare gifts, won the unstinted admiration of the audience, but not more so than did the local talent that participated. The latter were Mrs. Percy H. Frye, Miss Cotton, Miss Foster, Miss Mary Louise Bennett (now of Boston) to be sure, but whom we claim as our own from her long residence among us, and a very capable chorus that was heard in Chaminade's "Evening Prayer in Brittany."

Mrs. Deach's "The Rose of Avon Town," Wilson's "Vocal Waltz," Osgood's "From a By-Gone Day," Brahms's "Fidella" and Brackett's "Fast Asleep."

Mr. Vliet's selections were "Trauer" (Schumann), the difficult "La Cinqquantaine," by Gabriel Marie, "Andante, from A minor concerto," (Gothman) and Tella's "En Sourdine." In each was his true artistic spirit and expression exemplified at its best.

Miss Bennett first rendered the couplet (a) "Quando erit," from Faust, (Gendron) and (b) "Gavotte," from Mignon (A. Thomas). Later she was heard in Chaminade's beautiful composition "Dear Love, When in Thine Arms," and "O, Let Night Speak of Me."

Miss Bennett was in sympathetic voice and the applause that she received was certainly well deserved.

"Singing Song" revealed all the qualities of Mrs. Frye's voice and she delighted us by her listeners.

The duet by Miss Foster and Miss Cotton was not the least enjoyable part of the evening. It was "The Song of the Sea" (A. Goring Thomas).

A LARGE PARTY.

The Young Men's Whist Club held A Very Successful Session.

The popularity of the Young Men's Whist club was again demonstrated on Thursday evening when the largest party of the season gathered at Conservatory hall. Nineteen tables were occupied and after a very spirited contest prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies' first, a handsome rocking chair, to Mrs. George H. Ducker; second, a mantle clock, to Mrs. Ella Oliver; third, silver salt and pepper holder, to Mrs. Charles W. Lovejoy; fourth, a large framed picture, to H. W. Yeager; second, a Roman sword, to J. Will Rogers; third, a park on playing cards, to W. F. Jordan. The next party will be held on Thursday evening, March 20.

Dr. George E. Pender, who has been visiting his parents on Morrill street, has returned to Boston.

Ernest Trefethon, clerk at Payne and Walker's, is confined to his home by an attack of rheumatism.

Mrs. Herbert Nelson of Dennett street was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Frank Staples of Elliot on Thursday.

President Tucker of Dartmouth will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the state federation of Women's clubs in Dover in May.

Capt. Fowler has received his new napkin launch Dryda, from Boston and will put her on the New Castle and Kittery Point route at once.

Rev. Herbert Henson of Portsmouth was in town over night. He preached a Lenten sermon in St. Mary's church last evening.—Porter's Democrat.

E. Scott Owen, William P. Fiske and James B. Eddy, executive committee of the state Y. M. C. A., have issued the full program for the state convention in Manchester. A very interesting and useful series of meetings is assured.

THE RRS. LECTURE.

Jacob Riis, who lectures at Music hall next Wednesday evening, is not only a speaker of distinction in his field but has written a number of books which have widely circulated. "How the Other Half Lives" is perhaps the best known of these. In it Mr. Riis tells what has and what has not been done toward relieving the conditions existing in the slums of New York city. Mr. Riis comes to Portsmouth at the solicitation of the Grafton club. His subject will be "The Battle with the Slum."

OFFICERS CHOSEN.

The volunteer life-saving crew of the Portsmouth Yacht club met at the club building on Thursday evening and chose the following officers:

Commanding Officer, Lemuel Pope, Jr.; Captain, John Holman; First Lieutenant, James Lee; Second Lieutenant, Richard O'Brien; Third Lieutenant, Fred Schneider; Surgeon, Dr. G. Scott Locke.

There are now about forty members.

OBITUARY.

Francis Osborne.

The death of Frank Osborne, occurred at his home in Kittery early this morning after a long illness, at the age of sixty-seven years. Mr. Osborne is survived by a daughter. The funeral will be held at one o'clock Sunday from his late home and will be strictly private, relatives only being invited.

Well Preserved

Women often astonish new acquaintances, who are introduced to a large family of strong boys and healthy girls, who call this young looking woman mother. It is popularly supposed that maternity is the foe of beauty, and the worn and faded face of many a mother is evidence to warrant the belief. But it is a hard to believe that nature should compel a woman to sacrifice the rightful dower of her beauty in order to carry out a natural function of her being. And nature does not. The pains and sufferings incident to motherhood are, to a large extent, unnatural. This is proved by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which prevents and cures nausea, tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite, induces refreshing sleep, and makes the baby's advent practically painless.

Mrs. Orrin Stiles of Downing, Dunn Co., Wis., writes: "I have been intending to write to you ever since my baby was born in regard to what your 'Favorite Prescription' has done for me. I cannot praise it enough, for I have not been as well for five years as I am now. In July last I had a baby boy, weight 13 lbs., and I was only sick a short time, and since I got up have not had a sick day. I have not had any uterine trouble since I got up. I was not only surprised myself but all my friends here are surprised to see me so well."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

AT THE NAVY YARD.

The work on the new equipment building is progressing with a rush.

The upholstering work on the new ferryboat will be done by a Portsmouth firm.

A carload of sheet iron for the ship-fitters was unloaded on Thursday by the locomotive crane.

The two large rowboats loaded on the car Thursday will be shipped for the U. S. S. Arkansas.

Eight applicants will appear for examination on Saturday for apprenticeships in the steam engineering.

The coal that is being unloaded from the schooner is being distributed to the different departments by teams from Portsmouth.

Some new sentry boxes have been built at the yards and docks carpenters' shop and will soon be put in their places about the yard.

The Franklin ship house was a very busy place on Thursday, a delegation of men from about every department of the yard working there at fitting out the torpedo boat Dahlgren, which will soon be put in the water, finishing up the cutter for the Newport training station and storing newly-made boats from the front shop. These boats, like all others built at the yard, are handsome and catch the eye of everybody who gets a look at them.

CITY SIDELIGHTS.

The expressmen who run between this city and Boston seem to think there is not much danger of express goods shipping to Portsmouth from the city being tied up on account of the strike.

Reports come in from Rye that the township is full of robins and bluebirds, while one citizen says he will go before a justice of the peace and swear that he counted one hundred and fifty blackbirds down that way on Thursday.

It was just about this time in 1888 that this section of the country was caught in the clutch of one of the fiercest blizzards that ever came down the pine in the month of March. It happened along on the day before town meeting and the old settlers up in the northern part of the state can tell some very interesting reminiscences of the storm. It is different this year. The afternoon sky on Thursday was soot with real summer tints.

Junior, the speedy filly that Thomas W. Lawson recently bought of the Maplewood stock farm, is among the horses that he has named in the Herald Woodruff 2:20 trot for a purse of $5,000 at the Brighton Beach meet the coming season.

In preparations count for anything, that Easter ball of the Country club ought to be one of the swiftest affairs that has engaged the interest of local society for a long time. Philbrick hall will undoubtedly be brilliant with a lot of very elaborate gowns.

Although the barbers of the city have been closing their shops every Thursday afternoon for six or seven weeks now, still hardly a week passes that somebody does not forget it and get caught in the lurch with a growth of beard that has to wait until the next morning.

ORGANIZED IN KITTERY.

The Kentucky Lead Mining company organized on Wednesday at a meeting of the Lawyers' Incorporation and Transfer Co. Capital stock $1,000,000, par value, $100 to mine and deal in gold, silver and other metals. Directors, Thomas N. Vernon, James Brown, Charles C. Smith, Mark W. Droms, Charles C. Smith, Mark W. Paul, C. M. Prince.

KITTERY POINT.

The men employed here during the winter by the U. S. Fish commissioner, have about finished their season's work, which will not be as large as usual. The large amount of stormy weather, together with the small amount of fish which have been landed here will make the amount of spawn sent from here small in comparison with that of former years.

Captain Hahn, who has charge of the force, is a very pleasant gentleman and is deservedly popular with those under him. He has made many friends since coming here, and it is hoped that he may be ordered here another year.

In the issue of the Youth's Companion for March 6, there appeared a story entitled "Amos Parkinson," from the pen of George S. Wasson. The writer is a very busy and studious man, not only with the pen but with the brush, his marine pictures being elegant. He is a frequent contributor to the Atlantic Monthly and several of the Harper publications, and his articles are always readable and interesting. About the only recreation he takes is in the summer when his fine yacht is in commission. With his two young sons he enjoys many pleasant cruises along the New England coast. He is an intimate friend of William Dean Howells, who summered here in 1900.

Many fine pieces of monumental work will be erected in the local cemeteries as soon as the frost leaves the ground sufficiently to permit the laying of foundations. It is pleasing to note how much better the cemeteries are kept up now than they were a few years ago.

The large five-masted schooner now being discharged at Portsmouth, attracted much attention while at anchor in the harbor last week. The first attempt of the tugs to tow the vessel to Portsmouth was unsuccessful, but the second attempt was successful.

Motorman Burton of the local street railway on Saturday for a visit to his sister home at the state capital.

Mrs. Joseph Neal is the guest of her parents in Malden, Mass.

The attendance at the church services on Sunday was quite small.

This is the time of year when large piles of cord wood are seen piled up in the door yards.

Miss Minnie E. Irish of the Maine General Hospital, is passing a two weeks' vacation with her parents, Len Irish, of the Farmington Normal school is also at the parental home for a short vacation.

Reports from the Cottage hospital at Portsmouth are most encouraging and are to the effect that John Lewis, the victim of recent unfortunate accident, is doing nicely and that amputation of his left leg will not be necessary.

Miss Elizabeth Berry entertained a party of twenty-five young friends last Thursday evening, that date being the anniversary of her birth. The amusements were varied and much enjoyed. Ice cream and cake were served.

Hon. and Mrs. Horace Mitchell left on Friday for a trip to Washington, D. C., and other points of interest in that vicinity. They went on a tour arranged as a legislative reunion of the Maine senate of which Mr. Mitchell was a member.

Town meeting day is coming soon and the voters will then be called upon to decide many important questions. In this meeting it is hoped that party difficulties and political animosities may be laid aside and that the voters will get right down to business and work together for the best interests of the town. Politics should cut no ice when it comes to putting up a good race for an office or trust. The annual town reports are being printed at Portsmouth and will be issued soon. They will prove very interesting reading and contain much food for thought. Go to the polls early and do your duty.

SPORTING NOTES.

A full sister to Eleata, 2:08 3/4, will be sold at Cleveland next May.

Thomas D. Marsh and the other reinmen at the Lawson stable, are kept pretty busy these days joggling the horses that they are to take down the grand circuit the coming season. They have some pretty slick goods to work with, and they should bring home a big bundle of money before the end of the season.

Thomas W. Lawson of Boston has purchased the brown yearling colt of Charles Beachy, Jr., of Lexington, Ky., at a good low price. The colt is by Ponce de Leon, dam by Electioneer, 3d dam by Wilkes Boy. The colt has shown as good as any yearling in Kentucky for years, and is named in all futurity stakes. The colt will probably be shipped to Granite State park in a few days.

FISHING SCHOONER ASHORE.

A small fishing schooner, thought to be one of the Gloucester fleet, went ashore on Jamaica Island sometime during Thursday night. The craft was high and dry at low tide but was floated all right at flood tide.

LOW PRICES.

Many people shout Low Prices. The prices are low—so is the quality of the goods. We say low prices and we lack up the statement with a good strong reason. We can make the best clothing—make it as well as it can be made—at low prices, because our expenses are light and we have many patrons. There is no use throwing money away. There is no use paying any more for perfection than you have to. We will be glad to see you at any time.
